

list of blogs and other resources around cybersecurity:

Three of the most informative blogs:

<https://krebsonsecurity.com/>

<https://www.schneier.com/>

<https://www.troyhunt.com/>

A few news sites:

<https://www.theregister.co.uk/>

<http://www.csoononline.com/>

<https://thehackernews.com/>

<http://www.securitybsides.com/w/page/12194156/FrontPage> - this is the main page for Security BSides, the volunteer-run security events around the world that I mentioned yesterday. From this page, you can see the sheer scale of events and locations.

<https://hack.me/> - this is an online sandbox where people can create and try to hack deliberately vulnerable applications in a safe way. I've never used it, but I heard about it from some community college students, and it seems like a cool resource.

<https://www.nsa.gov/about/cryptologic-heritage/museum/> - the National Cryptologic Museum